AT COLORADO SPRINGS.

At night's train from Denver brought to this city the party of German editors, who with a number of their friends, are on a pleasure tour through Colorado, the guests of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway company. They arrived in Pueblo on Wednesday, proceeded to Denver on Thursday, thence through Clear Creek Canon to Georgetown, and returning to Colorado Springs as before stated. A number of officers from the company were in waiting at the depot, and on the arrival of the train, the party proceeded immediately to Manitou, where they are guests at the Manitou House. They will visit during the day the Garden of the Gods, Glen Eyrie, and the various other points of interest in and about Manitou, returning to Colorado Springs in time to take the evening train for the south.

The party is composed of the following named gentlemen, all of whom are prominently connected with the German press: H. Rastuer, Illinois Staats Zeitung, Chicago; W. W. Coleman, Milwaukee Herald; Matthew Kramer, Detroit Volksblatt; P. V. Deuster, Milwaukee Seebote; A. Schultz, Kansas City Post and Tribune; E. D. Leischenschein, Allentown, (Pa.) Welbote; A. Marxhausen, Detroit Evening Post; Max Wentle, correspondent, Detroit; E. Olshausen, Westliche Post, St. Louis; Wm. Buhler, Amerika, St. Louis; S. N. Townsend, London Turf, Field and Farm; C. L. Bernays, and F. Spiering, St. Louis correspondents; A. Seidensticker, Zürich, Indianapolis; Dr. R. A. Koss, Agricultural Zeitung, Milwaukee. The party numbers in all twenty-one, several of the gentlemen being accompanied by their wives. The party is under the guidance of C. B. Schaudt, of Topeka, who is also connected with the A. T. & S. F. Railroad.

To-morrow they will take a trip down the road from Pueblo as far as Garland, and upon returning, further arrangements will be made.

Rev. W. T. Egbert, rector of Grace Church, New York, in company with his wife and children, are staying at the Beebe House, Manitou, where he proposes to remain during the summer.

Mr. E. F. H. Foster, an artist lately arrived from England, is visiting Manitou, and is staying at the Cliff House. He has just finished a very handsome picture of the "Ute Pass—looking up," and intends painting a picture of the "Ute Pass—looking down." We are informed that he is now at work on a picture of the new trail to the summit of Pike's Peak.

PERSONS.

Samuel C. Small returned from Leadville yesterday. He is at the National.

FROM LEADVILLE.

The Great Central Mining District—Its Immense Mineral Resources—A Railroad Needed for their Development.

LEADVILLE, JUNE 13, 1878.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

After careful study and observation, I am convinced that the mineral resources of Lake county and its tributary territory have never been over-estimated; that the "line of march" was again taken up.

The trail through the canon is very winding, crossing and recrossing the creek, climbing and descending the sides of the canon, surely reminding one of the old nursery rhyme, "Here we go up, up, upy, and here we go down, down, downy." The scenery throughout the canon is simply grand; at one time, looking from the banks of the creek, the walls of the canon could be seen extending upwards hundreds of feet, and again passing along the very edge of a precipice, away down which the creek might be seen, as it dashed along, and that when fully developed their abundance—richness almost staggers the credibility of old miners. No human calculation can fix the limit of value of these carbonate beds. Although like the typical Jude, these great horizontal contact veins have their pinches and barrens, their "horses" and faults, yet their average thickness and general continuity are such as insure a supply beyond computation, while their accessibility and ease in working, together with their tractability for smelting, render the cost of production much less than with other ores.

But the mineral riches of this district are not confined to the carbonates. This county is rimmed with lode-scattered mountains. Whether we climb to the east, the north or the west, we shall find a network of veins and fissures seaming the mountains and holding their treasures of gold and silver, of iron and lead, for the hand of man to gather them in. Their development has scarcely begun. On the north and west the pick of the miner has scarcely produced a scar, although the great central range is known to be fissured from top to bottom with well-filled lodes of gold and silver. Thousands of prospectors might flock to these mountain fields and yet be lost to one another, so vast is their extent.

Such, then, is the mineral territory tributary to Leadville. How shall it be developed?

While the growth of Leadville in population and business is one of the present wonders, yet its swaddling-clothes are scarcely off, and its development is a thing very likely to the future. We go to and from the camp solely upon the development of the mineral resources of the large territory tributary to it.

That development depends largely upon the market for ores. The market is good or poor according as it is accessible or inaccessible.

Leadville is locked up in the mountains. Transportation is uncertain and costly. Our miners are out at great expense and consequently buy at a high rate. We buy stores and horses at a high rate.

We need a road and always have been.

A railroad would be well as high grade.
